Nakashima Photography: Bridging the Urban-Nature Gap with Fine Art Photography

Fairbanks, Alaska – 2023.12.20

In the hustle and bustle of modern society, the natural world often takes a backseat, and the distance between urban life and nature widens. Nakashima Photography, founded by Takashi Nakashima, aims to change that narrative by bringing nature closer through the lens of fine art photography.

Mission: "Bring Nature Inside"

Nakashima Photography is not just a business; it's a mission. Takashi Nakashima, the creative force behind the lens, expresses concern about the diminishing opportunities for urban dwellers to contemplate nature in a serene environment. Having been touched by the primitive landscapes of Alaska, Nakashima found inspiration that led to the motto "Bring Nature Inside." While the photographs may not be nature per se, they encapsulate the essence of natural landscapes and the creatures inhabiting them, providing viewers with a sense of tranquil energy.

"As an artist, I aspire to make nature more accessible in even the smallest of ways. My photographs serve as a reminder of the beauty of the natural world, fostering a connection between individuals and the environment," says Takashi Nakashima.

Products: Fine Art Photography

Nakashima Photography specializes in fine art photography, capturing the intricate details of nature in visually stunning compositions. Each photograph is a piece of art, evoking emotions and inviting viewers to contemplate the beauty that surrounds them.

Key Achievements: A Testament to Excellence

Nakashima Photography's commitment to excellence has been recognized by industry leaders. The business achieved publication on the SONY A7 website, showcasing the high caliber of its work. Additionally, Nakashima Photography received the prestigious Epson Photography Ground Prize, further solidifying its position in the world of fine art photography.
